DETAILED ACTION

Allowable Subject Matter

1. The indicated allowability of claim 3 (now rewritten in claim 1) is withdrawn in view of the newly discovered reference(s) to Yang (U.S. patent 6,519,345). Rejections based on the newly cited reference(s) follow.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-2 and 4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yang (U.S. patent 6,519,345) in view of figure 1 (prior art) as admitted by the Applicant and further in view of Newman (U.S. patent 2,678,973) or Hazard (U.S. patent 2,611,829).

Regarding claims 1-2, Yang teaches an earphone device that comprises an earphone (1), a membrane sound capture device (microphone casing 2, figures 2 and 6) for receiving the input sound waves, and a connecting line between the earphone and the membrane sound capture device. The membrane sound capture device (2) of Yang has a plurality of vent holes (21, 81, col. 2, lines 26-29 and lines 46-52) as claimed.

Yang does not specifically disclose a wireless communication module in the earphone.

The admitted prior art (figure 1) teaches a wireless communication module (12 in the bluetooth earpiece 1) for communicating between an earpiece and a communications apparatus.

Art Unit: 2643

Since providing a wire or wireless earphone is known in the art; it therefore would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to provide a wireless communication module (12), as taught by the admitted prior art (figure 1), in the earphone (1) of Yang for providing a wireless communication between the earphone and the communication apparatus.

Yang in view of the admitted prior art (figure 1) lack the teaching of a sticking layer on the membrane sound capture device.

Newman or Hazard teaches a bone conduction transducer with a sticking layer (24, 58 in Newman, 30 in Hazard) with the membrane sound capture device (10, 14, 41 in Newman and 10, 11, 12, 13, 27 in Hazard) therein.

Since Yang and Newman or Hazard teaches a transducer to be directly mounted to the skin of the wearer; it therefore would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to provide a sticky layer, as taught by Newman or Hazard, on the microphone casing (2, 23) of Yang for directly adhering and better securing the microphone casing to the skin of the wearer.

Regarding claim 4, Yang in view of figure 1 and Newman or Hazard do not teach an insertion hole on the earphone (2, 21) as claimed. However, Yang does show an electrically connecting line between the microphone (2) and the earphone (1) and providing a plug and the inserting hole for the electrical connecting lines is known in the art.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one skilled in the art to provide a plug and an inserting hole on the earphone of Yang in view of the admitted prior art (figure 1) for the same desired function of electrically connecting the earphone (1) to the microphone casing (2) and for better storage the device.
